Dear Fellow Shareholders,

Investors welcomed the widely unexpected return of the Morrison Government with a $32.8 billion rally in equities that saw the S&P/ASX All Ordinaries Index reach an 11-year high. We are extremely pleased that the inequitable and illogical franking credits proposal is now off the table for at least a generation. After the election, the listed investment company (LIC) sector is now poised for a recovery. Shares in our LICs rallied during the month: 3.0% for WAM Capital; 0.5% for WAM Leaders; 5.5% for WAM Global; 3.9% for WAM Research; 2.5% for WAM Active; and 5.4% for WAM Microcap against the broader sector which was flat*.

The S&P/ASX All Ordinaries Accumulation Index increased 1.7% in May, while the MSCI World Index (AUD) closed down 4.3%. Australia was the only advanced economy to experience a rise in its equity market during May and belied the state of the domestic economy. In announcing a rate cut of 0.25 percentage points to a record low of 1.25% on 4 June, Reserve Bank of Australia Governor Lowe warned of low wage growth, falling house prices, unemployment concerns and global trade uncertainties.

In the United States (US), speculation about the Federal Reserve's monetary policy decisions continued to dictate the equity markets' movements. The S&P 500 Index capped its worst month of the year, declining

6.6% in local terms as President Trump erratically extended his trade wars by proposing tariffs on Mexico. The Dow Jones Industrial Average ended May with six straight weekly losses, the longest slump since 2011, down 6.7% for the month in local terms. The Nasdaq Composite fell by 7.9% during the month in local terms, experiencing a technical correction on 3 June after the best four-month start to a calendar year in decades. China's CSI 300 Index was down 7.2% for the month in local terms, illustrating that both sides have been impacted by the ongoing trade war.

In Europe, the Euro Stoxx 50 Index and FTSE 100 Index closed the month down 6.7% and 3.5% respectively in local terms as the rise of populism and the impact of Brexit became apparent in the recent European Parliamentary elections.

We remain cautious in our investment outlook and focused on capital preservation as the bull market continues to be extended by cheap money from central banks. Over time loose monetary policy will cease to effectively stimulate the global economy, which continues to show signs of slowing.

Thank you for joining us at our May 2019 Shareholder Presentations

During May we travelled around Australia for our semi-annual Shareholder Presentations. It was great to connect with almost 4,000 of you across Australia and over 1,000 viewers through the livestream at the Sydney presentation. We started in Toowoomba, followed by Launceston, Melbourne, Adelaide, Perth, Canberra, Brisbane and finished in Sydney. If you were unable to attend the presentations you can watch the recording and view the slides.

We look forward to seeing you again at our next Shareholder Presentations in November, please see the following dates:

Gold Coast: Friday, 15 November 2019

Canberra: Monday, 18 November 2019

Sydney: Tuesday, 19 November 2019

Brisbane: Thursday, 21 November 2019

Hobart: Monday, 25 November 2019

Perth: Tuesday, 26 November 2019

Adelaide: Wednesday, 27 November 2019

Melbourne: Thursday, 28 November 2019

Future Generation Shareholder Presentation and Investment Forum

Thank you to all who attended the Future Generation Investment Forum where eight FGX and FGG fund managers presented their highest conviction stock picks. The Australian Financial Review's Chanticleer columnist Tony Boyd also joined Hamish Douglass, Magellan's chairman and chief investment officer. Over 1,000 people attended in Sydney – you can watch the Investment Forum recording here.

You can also view the Future Generation Shareholder Presentation where FGX and FGG charities showed how they are directing their donations and the impact the charitable investment makes.

Good luck investing,

Portfolio update

The WAM Leaders investment portfolio increased 1.1% in May. The S&P/ASX 200 Accumulation Index rose 1.7% during the month, primarily driven by the Australian banks which rallied following the surprise Coalition re-election. The bulk mining stocks continued to push higher on the back of tightening supply and very strong China steel demand, with high iron-ore prices flowing into the record Australian trade surplus.

A portfolio contributor for the month was Telstra (ASX: TLS), which increased 80% in May. During the month, TLS announced an expected $500 million write-down in the value of its information technology assets and a $200 million increase in its restructuring costs. Despite this, TLS maintained its profit guidance for the 2019 financial year and we believe management may have brought forward the impairment due to the company's T22 change program running ahead of schedule. The T22 strategy includes a reduction of 8,000 staff and a $3 billion investment in digitising and simplifying the company's information technology platforms by 2022. Telstra also stands to benefit from recent industry movements as the Commonwealth Government banned Huawei's development of Australia's 5G network.

A detractor to the portfolio performance during the month was Treasury Wine Estates (ASX: TWE). TWE's share price was impacted by concerns over the US-China trade war and the ripple effect given China's importance as a key export market. The company's share price has also come under pressure after its chief executive officer sold almost half of his ordinary shares in the company and amid a release of a short thesis report on the company from a US fund manager. TWE shares closed down 12.5% for May.

Portfolio update

The WAM Capital investment portfolio increased 0.1% in May. The S&P/ASX Small Industrials Accumulation Index fell 1.3% for the month. The S&P/ASX All Ordinaries Accumulation Index rose 1.7% during May, primarily driven by the Australian banks which rallied following the surprise Coalition re-election.

Research-driven portion of the investment portfolio:

A key contributor to the portfolio performance included Nine Entertainment Co. Holdings (ASX: NEC). We started buying NEC earlier this year following the completion of the company's merger with Fairfax Media (ASX: FXJ). In May, NEC announced that it has delivered additional annualised cost synergies of $30 million in FY20 and expects that Stan will move from a loss making business to contributing more than $30 million in earnings. NEC shares closed up 18.9% in May.

Market-driven portion of the investment portfolio:

A key contributor for the month was Automotive Holdings Group (ASX: AHG), which closed up 22.1% in May. AHG is a diversified automotive retailing and logistics group with operations in Australia and New Zealand. AHG is Australia's largest automotive retailer. During the month, AP Eagers (ASX: APE) improved its takeover offer for AHG and increased its all scrip offer of 1 APE share for every 3.6 AHG shares, which the board recommended. We first invested in AHG as we believed the weak new car sales environment was approaching a floor and believed Automotive Holdings Group's assets were strategically placed for future growth.

Portfolio update

The MSCI World Index (AUD) decreased by 4.3% and the S&P Global Mid Small Index declined 4.8% in AUD terms in May. The information technology, energy, materials and consumer discretionary sectors led the month's declines, while real estate and utilities were the best performing sectors. Most major equity markets fell in local terms: the US S&P 500 Index fell by 6.6%; the Euro Stoxx 50 Index by 6.7%; the UK FTSE 100 Index by 3.5%; Japan's TOPIX by 6.5%; and China's CSI 300 Index by 7.2%.

Contributors to the investment portfolio performance during the month included Kobe Bussan (TYO: 3038), CME Group (NASDAQ: CME), Deutsche Boerse (ETR: DB1) and Harris Corp (NYSE: HRS).

Kobe Bussan is a Japanese discount supermarket chain, considered the nation's Aldi. The company operates a vertically integrated supply chain and offers a select range of privately branded low-priced products. Kobe Bussan continues to steadily expand its market share within the fragmented Japanese supermarket industry. We recently travelled to Japan to meet with Kobe Bussan's management team and were impressed with the long runway of growth still available to the company.

As market volatility increased in May, exchange operators CME Group and Deutsche Boerse contributed positively to performance. Derivatives exchanges benefit from increased volatility as market participants use derivatives to protect against uncertainty. Chicago-based CME is the world's largest derivatives exchange and Deutsche Boerse is the leading exchange in Germany.

Harris is the global leader in next-generation multi-band radios and electronic components for the US defence forces. While Harris has performed well to date, we believe the company is set to benefit from the operational and revenue synergies that will result from its pending merger with L3 Technologies (NYSE: LLL). We expect the combined entity to enjoy a privileged position as a best-in-class provider of electronic sub-systems within this space.

During May, trade tensions escalated significantly between the US and China. Following months of negotiations, the positive momentum deteriorated into a series of tit-for-tat announcements. First, President Trump accused the Chinese of attempting to renegotiate previously agreed to terms for a trade deal and increased tariffs from 10% to 25% on $200 billion worth of Chinese goods and threatened to add tariffs of 25% on an additional $325 billion worth of goods. The Chinese denied the charge and the Vice Minister of Foreign Affairs Zhang Hanhui accused the US of "economic terrorism, economic hegemony and economic chauvinism". The Chinese then placed an additional tariff of up to 25% on $60 billion worth of US goods. The US returned fire by placing sanctions on Huawei in an attempt to cut it off from critical components for its business. In consequence to US hostilities, China threatened to limit access to rare earths supplies of which 80% of US supply originates from China. Rare earths are critical for manufacturing in US defence, technology and energy sectors.

We see a continuation of this approach to trade wars posing a key risk to global growth, increasing uncertainty for businesses and potentially reducing their willingness to undertake capital investments. We continue to regularly engage with company management of all our portfolio holdings regarding any potential impact from the trade war developments.

Portfolio update

The WAM Research investment portfolio increased 2.0% in May. Contributors to the portfolio performance included Nine Entertainment Co. Holdings (ASX: NEC) and Xero (ASX: XRO). We started buying NEC earlier this year following the completion of the company's merger with Fairfax Media (ASX: FXJ). In May, NEC announced that it has delivered additional annualised cost synergies of $30 million in FY20 and expects that Stan will move from a loss making business to contributing more than $30 million in earnings. NEC closed up 18.9% in May.

Xero (ASX: XRO) is a global accounting software provider. XRO announced its FY19 results during May, beating consensus estimates across all key metrics: increased customer base, revenue and earnings. The outperformance was driven by the success of its international division. We first invested in February 2019, with our catalyst to purchase being an expected acceleration in British subscribers following the United Kingdom's 'Making Tax Digital' regulatory change in its transition to digital tax returns. XRO closed up 9.8% for the month.

Portfolio update

The WAM Active investment portfolio decreased 1.7% in May. A detractor to the performance during May was Macquarie Group (ASX: MQG). We invested in MQG as we believed the company's FY19 guidance of 15% profit growth was conservative given the strong growth in their funds management business. In early May, MQG released its FY19 results and reported earnings growth of 17%, however its outlook for FY20 earnings was 'slightly down on FY19' which was below the markets' expectations. MQG shares closed down 10.7% for the month.

A key contributor for the month was Automotive Holdings Group (ASX: AHG), which closed up 22.1% in May. UWL is a fixed wireless broadband network provider that connects residents and businesses across Australia to the internet. During May, UWL raised capital in an over-subscribed share placement, which we participated in, to fund a growing pipeline of accretive acquisitions. This capital was quickly put to use in the takeovers of Fone Dynamics and Call Dynamics, which further expanded its business into wireless, fibre and specialty telecommunication services. We first invested in UWL due to the strong growth opportunities in the sector and increasing demand for data. UWL closed up 116.7% in the month.

AD8 is the leading provider in digital media networking. Their technology is embedded into a growing number of media devices, improving the speed and range of audio connections. We invested in AD8 with an expectation that their industry leading position would drive an acceleration in revenue, and that new products would leverage their existing intellectual property into adjacent market opportunities. We continue to hold AD8 as this thesis plays out. AD8 closed up 28.2% in May.
